Abstract: This study analyzes pesantren strategies for managing cultural conflicts in non-Muslim communities. Using a qualitative approach with a case study method, data were collected through interviews, observations, and documentation, then analyzed using an interactive model, including data reduction, data presentation, data depiction, and conclusion drawing. The results showed that the pesantren implemented various strategies, such as intercultural dialogue, joint social activities, synergy in religious social activities, collaboration with government agencies, and image enhancement through achievements. These strategies play a significant role in preventing and resolving cultural conflicts, as well as building harmonious relationships with the surrounding community. This research reveals that pesantren not only function as religious education institutions, but also as social agents that contribute to intercultural integration and harmony, especially in plural societies. This finding confirms the important role of pesantren in promoting cross-cultural dialogue and collaboration to create more inclusive and harmonious relationships in non-Muslim communities.

Abstrak: Penelitian ini bertujuan menganalisis strategi pesantren dalam menangani dan meredakan konflik budaya di lingkungan masyarakat non-Muslim. Penelitian ini menggunakan metode kualitatif (studi kasus), data dikumpulkan melalui wawancara, observasi, dan dokumentasi, kemudian dianalisis menggunakan model interaktif, meliputi reduksi data, penyajian data, dan penarikan kesimpulan. Hasil penelitian menunjukkan bahwa pesantren menerapkan berbagai strategi seperti dialog antar budaya, pelaksanaan kegiatan sosial bersama, sinergi dalam aktivitas sosial keagamaan, kolaborasi dengan lembaga pemerintah, serta peningkatan citra melalui capaian prestasi. Strategi-strategi ini berperan signifikan dalam mencegah dan menyelesaikan konflik budaya, sekaligus membangun hubungan harmonis dengan masyarakat sekitar. Pesantren tidak hanya berfungsi sebagai lembaga pendidikan agama, tetapi juga sebagai agen sosial yang berkontribusi pada integrasi dan kerukunan antar budaya, khususnya di masyarakat yang plural. Temuan ini menegaskan pentingnya peran pesantren dalam mengedepankan dialog dan kolaborasi lintas budaya untuk menciptakan hubungan yang lebih inklusif dan harmonis di lingkungan masyarakat non-Muslim.

INTRODUCTION

Cultural conflicts often arise from differences in values and beliefs but are further exacerbated by a lack of understanding and effective communication (Aririguzoh, 2022; Indainanto et al., 2023; Koyuncu & Denise Chipindu, 2020). In a multicultural society, these conflicts are particularly prevalent where cultural and religious differences exist without adequate dialogue or collaboration to bridge them (Machendrawaty et al., 2022; Ngarawula & Wahyudi, 2024). Pesantren, as Islamic boarding schools, face unique challenges in fostering harmony with surrounding non-Muslim communities. These challenges stem from not only ideological differences but also the lack of culturally sensitive engagement strategies (Latif & Hafid, 2021; Brooks, et.al., 2020; Alabdulhadi & Alkandari, 2024). This underscores a pressing gap in understanding how pesantren can effectively manage and mitigate cultural conflicts within such complex environments.

Previous studies have demonstrated the potential of formal conflict management strategies in fostering harmonious relationships between pesantren and their diverse communities. For example, structured programs such as interfaith dialogues, multicultural education initiatives, and collaborative community projects have been identified as effective tools for reducing tensions (Pertwi, et al, 2024; Siddiq, et.al, 2024; Tondok, et.al, 2022; Mariyono, 2024; Muid, et al., 2024; Suryani & Muslim, 2024). These studies highlight how pesantren can maintain their values while engaging constructively with diverse cultural norms. However, most of this research focuses on formal and institutionalized approaches, often overlooking informal, adaptive methods. The lack of exploration into spontaneous and flexible strategies—such as personal relationships and community involvement—represents a research gap that this study aims to address.

This article seeks to analyze the various strategies employed by pesantren in managing and reducing cultural conflicts, with a focus on informal and adaptive approaches. Unlike formal strategies discussed in prior research, this study examines how personal interactions, emotional connections, and spontaneous community involvement can create harmony. Specific objectives include identifying effective methods used by pesantren to engage with non-Muslim communities and understanding the role of flexibility in their conflict management practices. By exploring these dimensions, this research aims to shed light on alternative approaches that complement formal strategies, offering a broader understanding of pesantren's role in multicultural settings.

The significance of this research lies in its potential to contribute to conflict resolution and social integration in multicultural societies. Pesantren, as educational institutions, have the unique ability to serve as bridges between different cultural and religious communities (Kawakip & Sulanam, 2023; Setyaningrum, et al, 2023; Sakai & Isbah, 2014). By focusing on informal and adaptive strategies, this study provides new insights into how pesantren can address cultural conflicts with flexibility and responsiveness, which is especially important in dynamic and diverse social contexts. The findings can inspire not only pesantren but also other institutions operating in pluralistic environments to adopt innovative methods for fostering tolerance and cohesion.

The challenges faced by pesantren in building harmonious relationships with non-Muslim communities reflect broader societal issues of prejudice, misunderstanding, and lack of dialogue (Djamaluddin, et al., 2024; Alkouatli, et al., 2023; Al Qurtuby, 2023). As microcosms of multicultural interaction, pesantren have the potential to become role models for other institutions in addressing these challenges. This study underscores the importance of addressing these gaps by exploring adaptive strategies that respond to the needs and nuances of the local social environment. By examining these strategies, the research directly contributes to efforts to reduce social polarization and enhance cultural integration.

What sets this study apart is its emphasis on non-formal strategies employed by pesantren. Unlike prior studies that focus heavily on structured programs and institutional frameworks, this research highlights the significance of daily interactions, personal engagement with community leaders, and spontaneous involvement in local activities. Such approaches demonstrate that flexibility and emotional closeness can be as impactful as formal strategies in fostering harmony. This perspective provides a fresh lens through which to understand the dynamic interplay between pesantren and their multicultural surroundings.

This research also contributes to the academic discourse on conflict resolution and education in pluralistic societies. By integrating theories of cultural adaptation and social cohesion, the study bridges gaps in existing literature. It emphasizes how pesantren, despite their traditionally conservative nature, can adopt progressive approaches that align with the principles of inclusivity and tolerance. Furthermore, the study's focus on informal methods enriches the existing body of knowledge, offering practical insights for educational institutions seeking to navigate cultural complexities.

The practical implications of this research extend beyond pesantren, offering valuable lessons for policymakers, educators, and community leaders. By showcasing how informal strategies can complement formal approaches, the study advocates for a more holistic understanding of conflict management. Policymakers can draw from these findings to develop supportive frameworks that encourage intercultural dialogue and collaboration. Similarly, pesantren and other educational institutions can adopt these insights to strengthen their roles as agents of social harmony, demonstrating that adaptability and inclusiveness are key to thriving in multicultural environments.

METHOD

This research uses a qualitative and case study approach to understand pesantren management strategies in a non-Muslim environment in depth, by conducting a case study at the Islamic education institution Ponpes Firdaus Jembrana Bali. The determination of this research object is due to its unique location in the middle of a non-Muslim society, thus offering an ideal context for observing pesantren strategies in managing cross-cultural relationships. This environment allows researchers to analyze the real challenges and adaptive approaches applied by pesantren in creating harmony. The study in this location also provides important insights into the role of pesantren in building tolerance in a multicultural society.

The sources of informants in this study include various related parties, such as pesantren administrators, teachers, students, community leaders, and parents of students, to obtain diverse perspectives. Involving informants from various backgrounds allows researchers to collect comprehensive data on pesantren management strategies.

Data collection techniques in this study include observation, interviews, and documentation, these techniques were chosen so that researchers can obtain in-depth and varied data. Observation allows researchers to observe direct interactions in pesantren, interviews provide personal perspectives from informants, and documentation provides supporting data from written records. The combination of these three techniques helps in gaining a thorough understanding of the pesantren management strategy.

The data analysis technique in this study uses the Miles and Huberman model, namely the interactive model, which includes three main stages: data reduction, data presentation and conclusion drawing. This technique was chosen because its interactive approach allows for in-depth analysis in stages.

Based on the picture above, the steps of this data analysis technique begin with data reduction, namely filtering important data from the results of interviews, observations, and documentation relevant to the pesantren management strategy. Furthermore, data presentation is done by organizing selected data in the form of tables or narratives so that patterns and relationships between findings are visible. The last stage, conclusion drawing, is done through the interpretation of emerging patterns so that researchers can conclude the effectiveness of pesantren management strategies in a multicultural environment.

RESULT AND DISCUSSION

The Importance of Intercultural Dialogue

Intercultural dialogue is very important as an effort to build understanding, reduce conflict, and strengthen harmonious relationships between pesantren and surrounding communities with different cultures, thus creating a more tolerant and respectful environment. Through dialogue, both parties can understand each other's values and traditions, thus reducing misunderstandings that can trigger conflicts.

In addition, dialogue plays an important role in reducing the potential for cultural conflict, where prejudice can be overcome by opening communication between communities. Social relations between pesantren residents and the local community can also be strengthened through dialogue that encourages participation in joint activities, creating closer emotional ties. Regular interaction supported by dialogue has also been shown to increase tolerance in multicultural societies, building mutual respect between groups. This dialogue not only serves as a means of communication but also paves the way for joint solutions to various local challenges, such as social or economic issues that require collaboration.

In addition, through joint social activities, dialogue serves to increase cultural awareness, build deeper understanding, and strengthen harmonious cooperation among the pesantren community and the surrounding community. The following table shows the importance of intercultural dialogue to strengthen the harmonious relationship between pesantren and the surrounding communities with different cultures.

Based on Table 2, intercultural dialogue provides significant benefits for Ponpes Firdaus Jembrana Bali, such as increasing understanding and tolerance between the pesantren and the surrounding community with different cultures. Through open interaction, cultural conflicts can be minimized, social relationships strengthened, and joint solutions to local challenges are created (Duxbury, et al., 2024; Hussain, et al., 2024; Nkrumah, et al., 2024; Arena et al., 2023; Kiss et al., 2022; Kurniawan et al., 2023; Roqib, 2021).

Joint Social Activities

Social activities involving pesantren and non-Muslim communities, such as social services, joint recitations, and celebrations of religious holidays, can strengthen relations between communities. These activities create a space for positive interactions that allow Santri and the community to get to know, understand, and appreciate cultural differences. By directly engaging in activities that benefit the neighborhood together, pesantren show concern for the needs of the community, which in turn can reduce prejudice or misunderstandings that may arise. This approach also strengthens social ties and a sense of community, so that pesantren are not only seen as religious institutions but also as an important part of the community that contributes to shared prosperity.

Ponpes Firdaus Jembrana Bali shows its commitment to building good relations with non-Muslim communities through joint social activities, one of which is the Amal Bakti Santri (ABAS) Programme for 9th and 12th-grade students. This annual program involves students in social service activities, such as cleaning the surrounding environment and providing social assistance to people in need. Through ABAS, the pesantren provide a space for Santri to interact and cooperate directly with the community, creating mutual respect and strengthening relationships. This program helps reduce cultural tensions, overcome prejudice, and build trust, resulting in harmonious and mutually supportive relationships.

Based on the picture above, proves that Ponpes Firdaus Jembrana Bali conducts social service activities in the form of the Santri Charity Programme which is held annually for students 9 and 12. Joint social activities, such as the Santri

Charity Programme at Ponpes Firdaus Jembrana Bali, have proven to be effective in building harmonious relationships with the surrounding community, especially non-Muslims. Through direct interaction in social service activities, pesantren can reduce cultural tensions and increase mutual understanding (Husni & Rohmah, 2024; Chuanchen & Zaini, 2023; Sulaiman & Ahmadi, 2020). The program strengthens social bonds between santri and residents and shows pesantren as an active part of the community that cares about the common welfare (Ilham & Noviarita, 2024; Bahiroh & Suud, 2020; Pujianto et al., 2021; Zukdi et al., 2022).

Joint social activities are proven to strengthen cooperation and create a harmonious environment and mutual respect in multicultural societies (Abdullah et al., 2023; Huda et al., 2021), one example is the collaboration between Pecalang and Banser in supporting religious events in Bali. Pecalang, known as traditional security in Hindu customs and ceremonies, are not only involved in guarding Hindu events but also assist in Islamic religious events, such as Idul Fitri or Maulid Nabi. Conversely, Banser (Barisan Anzor Serbaguna) is also present at Hindu events, such as during Galungan or Nyepi ceremonies, to help maintain order. This cooperation is not only to maintain security (Abdurrazak & Wanda, 2022; de Botton et al., 2021) but also reflects solidarity and mutual respect between religious communities (Kuswaya & Ali, 2021; Prasetiawati, 2020). By helping each other, they show that security and comfort in religious activities is a shared responsibility, not just the obligation of one group (Pellicka et al., 2023; Tobroni et al., 2020; Williams & Kates, 2022).

Collaboration with Government Agencies

Close cooperation between pesantren and government agencies can strengthen educational capacity, improve access to resources, and expand the social contribution of pesantren in community development. By working together, pesantren can be more involved in supporting government programmes. This not only enhances the role of pesantren in national development but also strengthens pesantren as relevant institutions in society.

Firdaus Islamic Boarding School Jembrana is an Islamic boarding school that actively collaborates with the government in various aspects, from education to social activities. One form of visible cooperation is by supporting government programmes such as the Sharia Economic development programme held by Bank Indonesia to make a real contribution to the development of Islamic economics and finance in Indonesia.

Based on the picture above, Pondok Pesantren Firdaus Jembrana was appointed to represent Bali Province in the 10 Year Indonesia Sharia Economic Festival (ISEF) 2023 signifying the recognition of the pesantren's role in encouraging the development of sharia economy. The pesantren's involvement in ISEF is not only as a participant, but as a representative that shows a strong commitment to the development of sharia economy at the regional level. With the presence of the ustadz and santri, Pesantren Firdaus showed that the pesantren is not only a centre of religious learning, but also an institution that encourages sharia-based economic independence in the community. This was reinforced by the expression of the head of the Firdaus Islamic Boarding School KH. Mahmudi at the event.

“Pesantren is a miniature of life so it is hoped that students will be able to learn from it before plunging into the real world. Pesantren does not only teach the Quran but also how to compete in global life” (PL).

The participation of pesantren in programmes such as ISEF strengthens their position as government partners in building an economic ecosystem based on sharia principles. In addition, events like this also provide opportunities for santri to understand more about the concepts of sharia economy, which is expected to equip them to make a real contribution to society after graduation.

Thus, Ponpes Firdaus expands its role as an educational institution that not only produces graduates with religious knowledge but also economic insights that are in accordance with sharia principles to support the vision of inclusive and sustainable Islamic economic development (Anggadwita et al., 2021; Iltiham & Rohtih, 2023; Saleh & Satriawan, 2020; Supriyanto et al., 2022). Islamic boarding schools also show their important role in building a harmonious society (Ihsan et al., 2021; Musaddad, 2023) and empowered through multicultural education that instils the value of tolerance and cooperation with the government (Abdullah et al., 2023; Mubarok & Ghony, 2024; Tamyis et al., 2023).

Improving the Positive Image of Pesantren Through Achievement

The participation of pesantren in art, cultural, or scientific competitions involving the general public has succeeded in improving the positive image of pesantren in the eyes of non-Muslim communities. The works produced by santri inspire a deeper appreciation and understanding of pesantren values, thus reducing negative stereotypes.

By participating in artistic, cultural, or scientific competitions, pesantren can showcase their positive values, such as tolerance, peace-loving, and creativity. This participation opens up opportunities for the non-Muslim community to see another side of pesantren that is not only concerned with religious education but also with the development of skills and general knowledge. This exposure enriches the general public's understanding of pesantren, which may have been limited to certain stereotypes.

Pesantren Firdaus Jembrana participated in a documentary film competition aimed at high school/vocational/secondary school students throughout Bali held by Religion for Peace (RfP) Indonesia for Responding to the increasingly alarming rate of climate change. The competition was also organized with the support of the Asian Conference of Religions and Peace (ACRP), Udayana University's Faculty of Tourism, Gita Santih Nusantara (GSN), and Gedong Gandhi Ashram (GGA). Here is an image of the climate change documentary film produced by Firdaus High School in 2023 which won second place in the competition. The link can be clicked on the following link: https://youtu.be/UI9IO_QzqaE.

In addition, Firdaus Islamic Boarding School also made a proud achievement through the PMR Madya contingent from Firdaus Junior High School, which won 3rd place for the digital poster category and 3rd place for the exemplary participant category in the 14th JUMBARA (Jumpa Bakti Gembira) event. This success shows that pesantren do not only focus on religious education, but also on the development of practical skills and broader human values.

This achievement in JUMBARA reflects the pesantren's commitment in educating students to become caring, creative individuals who contribute positively to social activities. In the digital poster competition, PMR Madya students were able to portray humanitarian messages through attractive visual works, showing their concern for community issues. Meanwhile, the award as an exemplary participant shows that the students have successfully demonstrated discipline, dedication, and good role models in participating in all JUMBARA activities. And there are many more achievements achieved by Ponpes Firdaus which can be seen on its official website and social media accounts, namely at the following links: <https://web.firdaus.sch.id/> and <https://www.instagram.com/pondok.pesantren.firdaus/>.

These achievements not only enhance the reputation of Pondok Pesantren within the broader community, demonstrating its positive role in fostering social harmony and cultural understanding (Aziz et al., 2021; Hastasari et al., 2022; Pasi et al., 2020). The recognition earned by the Pesantren underscores its ability to adapt to societal needs while maintaining its core values, thus elevating its status as a respected institution (Yasmeen, 2024; Alabdulhadi, 2024). This progress reflects the growing appreciation for the contributions of pesantren education in shaping individuals who are not only religiously grounded but also socially engaged and culturally aware (Achruh & Sukirman, 2024; Mashuri, et al., 2024).

Moreover, these accomplishments play a crucial role in strengthening interfaith relations in Bali, a region known for its rich cultural and religious diversity (Hadi et al., 2024; Nursyamsi et al., 2023). Through the active involvement of santri in social and humanitarian activities, such as disaster relief and community empowerment programs, pesantren students demonstrate a commitment to universal values of compassion and solidarity (Aimah et al., 2024; Hardi et al., 2021; Sopian & Suprpto, 2023; Wahono et al., 2023). This active engagement not only dispels misconceptions but also fosters mutual respect and collaboration among different religious communities.

CONCLUSION

Intercultural dialogue at Firdaus Islamic Boarding School in Jembrana Bali is essential in strengthening harmonious relationships with the surrounding community. Through joint social activities, such as the Amal Bakti Santri (ABAS) Programme, the pesantren reduces cultural conflicts, overcomes prejudice, and builds trust. Collaboration with the government in Sharia economic programs and achievements in art competitions strengthen the positive image of pesantren. Thus, pesantren are not only centers of religious education, but also institutions that play an active role in supporting social and economic development, increasing tolerance, and encouraging cooperation in a multicultural society.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

We would like to thank Pondok Pesantren Firdaus, and Jembrana, for the support, cooperation, and access provided during this research. Our gratitude also goes to the leaders of the pesantren, the students, and the surrounding community who have been willing to take the time for interviews and provide valuable information. The highest appreciation also goes to the supervisors and KH Mukhtar Syafaat University, Blokagung, for their direction, motivation, and facilitation. Hopefully, this research can make a real contribution to the development of pesantren strategies in a multicultural society.
